Elio™ to Attend Healthcare Facilities Symposium & Expo in Chicago

(Holland, MI) September 9, 2010- Elio™ is bringing its LED lighting products to the health care industry next week at Chicago's Healthcare Facilities Symposium and Expo at Navy Pier. By harnessing the power of LEDs into application specific designs, elio™ offers companies in the healthcare industry the opportunity to reduce operational costs, create a functional working space, and minimize their impact on the environment.

The show brings together varying decision makers including designers, facility managers, and construction & planning teams designing the next phase of healthcare. With the technology of LEDs taking shape and becoming readily available, lighting options have increased with much discussion and opportunity. Elio™ takes pride in its products offering safety certifications and tested lumen output, color rendering, and wattage usage. The fit for LEDs in the healthcare industry is ideal as they offer noteworthy performance and function.

"LED lighting is a huge opportunity for businesses in the healthcare industry. It not only brings significant cost savings from an operational standpoint but it's also a better investment for the future wellbeing of our society. LEDs have significantly less environmental impact through reduced energy consumption and no UV emissions in addition to containing no mercury or lead. Elio™ LED lighting is a golden opportunity for healthcare with benefits seen after the first use."

- Robert Van Driel. Industrial Sales Manager for ITC
